Local IT Firm Makes Desk Space, Computers, Printers and Internet Access Available For Companies Devastated By Tornadoes And Storms

Monroe, Michigan – In response to the devastating natural disaster that affected the Southeastern Michigan area over the weekend, Technology Experts (Tech Experts), Southeast Michigan's leading business computer support company, announced today it has set up extra workstations and equipment in its office for use by small businesses whose operations are affected by storm damage.

"The amount and severity of the destruction from these storms is staggering," said Thomas Fox, company president. "I had an opportunity to see the damage in the Dundee area for myself yesterday, and I can't imagine how difficult it will be for small businesses to get back on their feet. As the area's IT support company, I feel we have a responsibility to help."

Tech Experts has set up several workstations at spare desks in its office, and is making the computers, telephone and Internet access available without charge to any small business in the Monroe County area that needs it.

"It's incredibly important that companies, particularly small businesses, maintain continuity of operations after a disaster," commented Fox. "Everyone relies on computers and the Internet to run their businesses. I hope our small gesture will help these business owners when they are really in need."

Use of Tech Experts' offices and equipment is available during the company's business hours, 9am to 5pm, Monday through Friday. Business owners who need access to equipment, or assistance in retrieving data from damaged computers and servers, are asked to call Tech Experts at 734-457-5000 (toll free 888-457-5001) to check availability.

"We'll do everything we can to help Monroe County businesses get through this disaster," continued Fox. "Something like this transcends business. It's our obligation as a company to do what's necessary for our community."
